

An approximation is an expression which tells us the approximate value of a function, constant, variable, etc. Something is approximately correct if it is close to the true value, but we can't be sure that it is exactly right.

For example $\frac{22}{7}$ is an approximation for π .